

THE Summer Sc p

September 2018

Happy Fall, y'all!

We hope everyone had safe travels back home after a fun-filled summer!

Now, our office can begin preparations for Summer 2019. This is the time of year where we send out instructor invitations, begin planning guided bus tours, and, of course, anticipating our visit to Arizona in February. (The time when we envy YOUR beautiful weather.) Logan weather is already getting a little chilly, and cooler temperatures are headed our way.

We miss you in beautiful Cache Valley, but students have now arrived since classes started August 27th. The campus is once again bustling with energy as students run from class to class.

We hope each of you have a great month! Happy Fall, y'all!

“The Summer Citizens Program let us be college students without the stress, the Opera Festival and the Lyric Theatre treated us to a cultural Disneyland, and the citizenry were always welcoming.”

USU Announcements

2017 USU student body president Michael Scott Peters was named the 2018-19 US Youth observer to the United Nations.

Peters will represent American youth at the 73rd United Nations General Assembly in New York and other UN events throughout the coming year.

There is a new Aggie chocolate factory in the Blue Square restaurant area, which is a bean-to-bar operation and it will be both a store and laboratory. Visitors can purchase chocolate and other desserts, learn about the complexity of making chocolate, and even make their own. YUM!

In 2017, USU Extension helped distribute more than 3,800 pounds of fresh produce to senior citizens in Salt Lake County.

Katie Wagner, extension assistant professor of horticulture, found in her research that many seniors in Salt Lake didn't have access to a garden at home and used a food pantry.

Wagner said, "When you leave, you feel like you've been rejuvenated. The saddest part is sometimes not having enough food to give away."

"BE YOU. BE TRUE BLUE."

USU's president, Noelle E. Cockett, recently made an important announcement: The university will now be observing "True Blue Aggie Friday". Every Friday, faculty, staff, alumni, students, and Aggie family members are encouraged to wear "Aggie Blue" and "Fighting White" to show their school spirit!

You're important to Logan and to USU, and you are welcome to join us! USU campus will be a sea of blue and white every Friday, and you can show your Aggie spirit by wearing blue and white, too.
